A Debate on Piketty's
Capital in the Twenty-First Century.
March 2015

Editors' note

Professor Piketty's Capital in the Twenty-First Century is an important book that has opened a crucial debate in both academic circles and in the media. We would like, therefore, to devote a section of the next issue of our Journal to a critical debate on the book and we invite our colleagues to send their reviews. We will select three or four of them for publication. Each contribution will be subjected to refereeing and must be submitted following the usual instructions available on the site of the Journal. The text should comprise between three and eight pages. The final deadline for submission is March 31, 2015.
